The MK2, also known as the Mark II, a luxury car produced by Jaguar from 1959 to 1967.

It is a fast, spacious, and seductive car designed by Sir William Lyons, the founder of the British car manufacturer. This car represents a great commercial success for Jaguar, especially since the price was affordable for everyone, despite being a high-class car.

The London ring road, where mainly the bourgeoisie lived, is said to have been called the “Jag Belt” because of the large number of Jaguars they met.

This car was offered in different engines, the smallest was fitted with a displacement engine of 2,483 cm<sup>3</sup> (2.4 L), the average instead of 3,442 cm<sup>3</sup> (3.4 L, 210 hp) and the most powerful mounted a 3,781 cm<sup>3</sup> (3.8 L, 220 hp), like that used on the E-Type.

It is said that the MKII became in those years the car preferred of British criminals, although it soon also entered the police department. The thugs were intimidated as soon as they saw her that one of these cars was chasing them, and they were driven to stop right away. Thanks to its beauty and elegance, this car remains one of the most fascinating iconic models of the last century.

Car in wonderful condition, completely restored externally and internally. This beautiful 1961 unit shines in an impeccable metallic anthracite grey paint and restored interiors in red leather. The massive roots of the dashboard and doors, also covered in leather of the same color as the seats, are sumptuous. Central deck of the gearbox covered in leather. Original Jaguar three-spoke steering wheel. All on-board instrumentation works perfectly.

Becker Mexico car radio.

This Jaguar MK2 is mechanically flawless thanks to regular overhauls made on the engine in recent years.

Original Jaguar ray rims with tires in perfectly good conditions.

Duplicate of the key.

ASI gold plate no. 3437.

It is possible to view the car online, booking a call with one of our commercial operators, via Skype, Zoom, Whatsapp and Google Meet platforms.

The car is visible in the Ruote da Sogno showroom.
